Macro and keystrokes recording and backup software. How to use: 1. To record a keystroke: click the button "Record". Enter the program into its default input settings. Open the program's window. Press the key that you want to record. Click the red arrow icon to stop recording. 2. To play the recorded macro: click the button "Play". Press the hotkey, or any other key that you want to play the macro. The recorded macro will play automatically. Use case: Macro Record/Play: record your current keyboard hotkeys, and play them again later. Macro Recorder: record your current keyboard hotkeys and save them as.txt files for later use. Keyboard Recording and Playback Software Record the current hotkeys and save them as.txt files for later use. Record the current hotkeys and save them as.txt files for later use. Record and playback a macro for a particular key sequence, button, or hotkey, or to replay a set of recorded macros. Record your keystrokes and the system's response in real time, making it easy to review or reproduce the sequence in the future. Macros record keystrokes and system responses as they occur, then play them back or export them to a file. Macros have a unique function - to play them back or export them to a file later. Note: Before running the macro recorder, it is necessary to enable the recording of the keys in the options tab of the program. Keyboard macros can be stored on your disk as either a series of keystrokes that you can replay or as a file that can be later opened to play the sequence back. The recorded keystrokes can be stored either to a file or a clipboard. Once the keystrokes have been stored to a clipboard or a file, you can open the file and execute the macro. You can use macros as a tool for writing your own programs. They can be used as a tool to help you write programs that can operate your mouse and keyboard.
