Batman Arkham City Goty Product Key PATCHED

OK, here is my problem. It's to do with Steam accounts: The initial Xbox 360 disc will tell the system to apply its key online. When the disc is inserted on another computer and the account is activated, the game will also activate. I have a relatively old computer that is running XP, and I have put a disc in, and it asks me to connect to the network and activate my account. I don't have a network (read: cable) at home and I'm not sure whether my broadband speeds are sufficient to connect. Could you put me out of my misery and tell me what the correct steps are for performing this process? Thanks -- Seeker ps: My XP laptop is about three years old. I presume that's old enough to run 64-bit software. If you have Steam it should already be set up for online activation of Steam games. I don't have a Steam account on my computer, but I bought the game and got a key. The key works fine and the game installs without any problems. Unfortunately you have to have a valid Steam account in order to activate the game. You can get the games so you don't need to, but only through steam. You should have it all set up already, go to www.steampowered.com and activate your account. You should see your key in your account. Go to your games library and look for Batman: Arkham City (or whatever it is called) and it should show you a little steam symbol. Right click on that and "activate offline". If you get this far you are ready to play. If you don't have a valid Steam account you will need to activate it on the website. French police have taken video footage of a suspected tax-dodger clearing the final hurdle before fleeing the country. Highlighting what is thought to be a record-breaking attempt at tax evasion, the footage shows a man throwing a large bag out of a window and into a waiting car on the bank of the Seine river in Paris. The fugitive is shown being arrested as he jumps off a building, which shows no sign of damage, according to witnesses. He is then placed in the back of a Renault Clio and driven away. Following the incident, Paris police announced a reward of 100,000 euros ($125,000) for information about the fugitive's identity. The 24
